Naylor and Perkins will be supported by the Rockabilly Legends Band and the Solid Rock Singers. The performance will close with a special tribute to Buddy Holly, who Naylor replaced as lead singer of The Crickets after Holly's death in 1959.

Jerry Naylor began his career performing with these legends, and is the creator, writer and producer of "The Rockabilly Legends: They Called it Rockabilly Long Before They Called it Rock and Roll" book and documentary which is currently being broadcast on the PBS Television Network. Stan Perkins is the son of Rockabilly legend Carl Perkins, who in 1956 wrote and recorded the first Rockabilly/ Fifties Rock and Roll million-selling record, "Blue Suede Shoes," recognized as the original foundational recording defining Rock and Roll. Carl Perkins was one of the first inductees into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Stan grew up performing his father's classic rock and roll music, and played drums with the Carl Perkins band for 22 years, traveling the world on concert tours.

Doors will open at 6:30 pm with curtain at 7:30 pm.

All profits benefit the Rockabilly Legends Foundation that provides scholarships and funding for music curriculum in our colleges and universities.
